The most important thing about the visual component creation process is the rule of the thumb that was created in order to facilitate the creation of the components, as follows: 1. Put a visual component as the outcome of a task analysis, by composing the high-level design specifications and the details of the components. 2. Use only visual components to start the job. 3. It is not necessary to create all components at the same time. 82157476af
